welcome!

Keywords and keyphrases fall into two camps, so there's not a great deal of confusion: information keywords and buying keywords.

This roadmap will help you figure out what you're looking for

If you had never heard of Boules before, you might search for something along the lines of "What is/are Boules". That would be a straightforward search for information to help you decide whether or not it may be something you are interested in. So, too, would "Rules of Boules" be another information keyword.

Once you had become familiar with what type of game Boules is, you might then decide to find a club near you and then start using keywords with geographic intent and buying intent, such as "Best Boules" or "Boules reviews" or "Boules Club in Essex".

That's the difference between browsing and buying

three places to use keyphrases

tip number one

Headlines. If you can create a headline with a keyword and it doesn't sound yucky then you're doing great!

tip number two

In your heart opening paragraph you may find it's easy to place your keywords or keyphrase here. In terms of search, if your reader found your page and then saw the keyword in the headline and heart paragraph they'd feel in the right place

tip number three

Under your images in your call to action. You might also add it to your image if it fits!
